

Donna's Verdict On Crystal Synergy Cream? "It doesn't get better than this..."

Crystal Synergy has done well to stop pain but I have a whole new level of respect for this product. I had surgery December 22. I have tried not to take codeine more than I had to. I like my liver. About day five bruising was serious around my incisions. This was to be expected. I put the pain cream on each incision to try to prevent having to take the pain pill. As expected it took the pain away and I was comfortable again. What I didn't expect was the following morning the mass lump / swelling that was behind my incision was gone. Gone.

I was no longer moving so gingerly. I could stand up straight without the extreme pain and my overall energy level was much better. That I didn't expect from the cream. We have become the quick fix society including myself, so my initial expectation of the cream was it would take the pain away for a few hours, like aspirin or codeine and the pain will be back when it wears off. Job done. It is different with the cream. I'm sure where there is pain there is blocked energy. Especially with surgery where there was cutting involved.

It seems that the crystal cream targets the lack of energy and continues working on replacing energy to that spot. The difference in how I felt over night was amazing. I don't find this coincidental. The fact that the golf ball sized lump was gone and I felt better AFTER using the cream was a surprise. The bruising the next day went from black to yellow. I experimented with this. Days I didn't use the cream there was slight difference the next day but when using the cream there was vast difference in my pain level and energy level. Pain does deplete energy. Relief without drugs and speed healing. It doesn't get better than this.
